Kelly Reno, Actor: The Black Stallion. The son of cattle ranchers Bud and Ruth, Reno had been riding horses since he could walk. This experience qualified him for his role in The Black Stallion (1979), which he tried out for when his mother learned of the open audition. Both of his parents accompanied him to the filming location, and enjoyed the experience, but it was also disruptive

The Black Stallion Returns: (Georges Delerue) Despite its production difficulties, the 1979 adaptation of Walter Farley's famed children's novel concept had become a blockbuster hit with some help from producer Francis Ford Coppola. A sequel to The Black Stallion was already in the rough planning stages at the time of the first film's shooting, and once again featuring the support of Coppola

The Black Stallion Returns by Walter Farley

Faithful readers will recall that I chose "The Black Stallion" as the best movie of 1980. I was not, however, really looking forward to this sequel, because the original "Black Stallion" arrived at a completely satisfactory conclusion and was happily complete. What's more, the best parts of "The Black Stallion" were in the first half, when the boy and the horse were alone on the island.
